

How to Run Shawn64's Games

I've made a simple guide on how to run Shawn's games on Windows 7/8/10. Since these games were made in the mid-2000s, there are a few compatibility issues you will have to deal with.

If the game runs in fullscreen, then it will shrink your resolution while the game plays. This isn't really an issue unless the game crashes. You may want to have Task Manager already running just in case.

Several games require you to disable DPI scaling in order to open properly. Simply right-click the program and you should have an option on the Compatibility tab that reads "Disable display scaling on high DPI settings". Make sure this setting is checked.

If you have issues running these games on widescreen, try changing your resolution to a 4:3 aspect ratio. (For example: 640×480, 800×600, 1024×768, 1280×960, 1400×1050, 1440×1080, 1600×1200, 1920×1440)

Shawn's later games can be more difficult to run on modern computers, because of a compression issue with games made in GM6. Thankfully someone made a GM6 Converter to fix games that have this problem. I've uploaded fixed versions for Shawn's later games but you may want this tool if you deal with old GM games.

Lastly, f.lux is disabled in many games that have fullscreen mode (like Jetz 4). There is no way to get around this that I'm aware of. Some games simply override f.lux. Be aware of this and adjust your monitor accordingly if you're used to f.lux but want to play Shawn's games.

Here's a guide to which games start in fullscreen mode, which need DPI scaling disabled, and what controls to use to play.

(Note: this guide was written in February 2019. It will become outdated sooner or later. If you have additional issues, you may want to run the games in compatibility mode for Windows XP.)

Moving Forward

Outside of a few minor updates, my role here is largely finished. Here are some final updates I could use help with:

1. I would like to update the guide with some tips on how to run Shawn's games in Wine for Mac/Linux. I have zero experience with it cause I'm always on Windows.
2. I want to make some "strategy guides" to help people get into Shawn's later games. Specifically Jetz 4, Street Bike Fury and Mini Golf Pro. Contact me if that sounds like something you'd be interested in helping with.
3. I want to find the missing cheats to Shawn's later games.

For anyone who wants to contribute, contact me here: <https://s64games.wordpress.com/contact/>

Cheats (from tapeworm's 2008 Retrospective):

To skip a level in Thrust, press Ctrl + Enter + F1.

In Infection, it's Ctrl + F5.

In Bubble Gum, it's F6.

In Marblex, hold Enter and press a number from 1 to 9 to jump to that level.
